

Ms. Smith wakes up at noon, earlier than most day, to get a head start. She realizes that she only has enough food for her family for 1 meals.

She decided that she would take the kids out to eat for dinner during one intense chess match.

Estaban checks her phone to see how much money she has in her bank account and is surprised to see that she does not have enough money for dinner.

While she is on her phone she find the “Culinary Support” app and gets it. She gets on the app and immediately finds people to talk to and are willing to help her cook dinner

After some talking, Estaban finds someone she shares an interest with (chess) and knows how to cook

He teaches her how to cook and at the end of the day, she made a new friend, learned to cook, and was able to feed herself and her children.

Storyboard: Kitchen Club

By Tristan Storey

Jordan is a 19 year old freshman who is struggling with his eating habits and wants to learn how to cook some of his favorite foods.

Jordan often wakes up in the mornings with just enough time to get ready for class. He rarely ever eats lunch in between his classes, so he waits until he gets home to eat again. He often goes 6+ hours in between his meals. He wants to find a way to get better eating habits and to learn to cook so he's motivated to eat more often.

Jordan's friend recommended this app he recently downloaded that helps pair you with people with similar interests: food wise, and other people who want to learn how to cook and exchange knowledge/recipes/techniques.

Once he downloaded the app his friend suggested, he started finding people who also wanted to grow their ability to cook, and who wanted to get better eating habits. He would get notifications on his phone recommending people who he may want to meet up with and help each other cook or learn together.

This app allows Jordan to connect with many people from around his area where his apartment is who also want to cook. He is able to learn different recipes that he is able to impress his roommates with, and learn how to cook his favorite dishes for himself rather than eating out all the time.

Now that Jordan has made friends with similar interests, him and his new friends all are thriving with their new cooking skills and are all able to keep a healthy balance/schedule for school and their eating habits.

Storyboard: Kitchen Club

By: Anavami Isa

David is 28, and since he graduated college, his only source of food are fast foods and takeout. He spends a lot of his time working, so these methods of getting food were convenient for him.

During David's annual checkup, his doctor told him that he was overweight and needed to change his eating habits

You're FAT

David decides to download the Kitchen Club app

David immediately started making new friends on the app and learned how to cook new foods

Now david is losing, weight, making friends, and is having a great time using the Kitchen Club app!

Storyboard: Kitchen Club

Grant King

Mr. Johnson, age 60, spends his days in his shop, where he both designs and markets his fantastical umbrellas. He's off his feet for most of the day, and he usually dines out or gets takeout.

He dines out often and eats a lot of takeout, so he wants to eat cleaner by cooking at home and to save money by cooking at home. His problem is, he doesn't know how to cook at home!

His wife helps him download the Kitchen Club app onto his phone.

He immediately adds his wife as a friend on the app, and he starts chatting with people his age about their cooking knowledge! He also makes plans to hang out with different people and learn new recipes together!

He even connects with a group of fellow umbrella lovers and starts cooking with them!

In the end, Mr. Johnson's family, belly, wallet, and brain are happy! He starts cooking the recipes he learned, making his meals cleaner, cheaper, and tastier.

